

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

Apparatus, and associated method, for dynamically selecting frequencies upon which to define communication channels in a communication system, such as a wireless mesh network. Frequency
5 levels are selected for global use throughout the entire mesh network. And, frequency levels upon which to define local communication channels for individual nodes of the mesh network are also selectable.